Let's work together to prevent diabetes!

What are the benefits?

- Participate in four peer-based learning sessions focused on improving pre-diabetes prevention and clinical care for agricultural workers and their families.
- Gain critical knowledge on how to identify, prevent, and manage childhood obesity through expert-guided sessions of planning, action, coaching, and evaluation and through shared discussions with your health center peers.
- Contribute to peer learning by sharing your own experiences, knowledge, and expertise.
- Gain expertise in diabetes prevention and advocate for your agricultural worker patients and their families.
- Develop an action plan for your health center to improve diabetes prevention among agricultural worker patients and their children.

What will I learn?

- The role of structural factors and social determinants of health in diabetes prevention for agricultural workers and their families.
- National guidelines and best practices in clinical benchmarks for pediatric obesity and BMI assessment.
- Identify useful strategies for incorporating age-appropriate nutrition and physical activity counseling into clinic workflow.

Who can apply?

Primary care, behavioral health providers and outreach workers are encouraged to apply. Each community health center, FQHC or SBHC must have at least two staff members participate. Space is limited. Apply by October 6th, 2021!
